

Kindness Blooms Through Cancer: A Donor's Healing Gift

Amy and Jason were living a fun life with their mom and dad on the farm when the doctor called with bad news. Mom explained that there was a lump in her breast that had cancer, which meant that Mom was very sick. "I'm going to be tired and will need lots of care," Mom said.

Amy and Jason were ready to help. When Mom's hair started falling out because of the medicine, Amy and Jason helped cut her hair and picked out a new wig for her. They even helped with the dishes. All the love and care made Mom feel very special.

Mom explained that doctors would remove the cancer causing her sickness. To help her get better, doctors used tissue from a donor. Just like getting a new heart or kidney from an organ donor, she would get skin from someone who has died to help her feel and look better.

"Will you still be able to feed the animals with us?" Amy and Jason asked.

Mom smiled, "It will take some time to heal, but when I'm feeling better, we can do whatever you want!"

When Mom started to feel better again, Amy and Jason helped her write a thank you letter to their donor's family. Today, the kids and their mom enjoy a cancer-free life with more fun and laughter!
